

Development Team

The development team uses the ethos of craftsmanship and is accountable for quality.

There are no predefined roles in the development team, however it should contain all of the skills required to create a potentially shippable "done" increment at the end of each sprint.

Involved in

Planning

Daily scrum

Refinement
(optional)

Review

Retrospective

Role Responsibilities

- Most effective with between 3-9 members
- Cross-functional, self-organising
- Optimises the output of the sprint
- Responsible for software quality
- Decides how features should be implemented
- Principle accountability: delivering a valuable, quality product

Agile Development Tools

- Pair programming
- Test driven
- Code reviews
- Continuous integration
- Refactoring
- Incremental design
- Automation
- Emergent architecture

Typical Day

